Sustainable Development

The societal approach

Sustainability is the central, global challenge of the 21st century and will gain high socio-political and media traction in the coming years. And sustainability goes beyond the required climate protection; there is constant demand to use limited resources responsibly, to create a future-orientated society and to promote social justice.

This is where private companies can make an important contribution; they are called upon to redesign their business models and give sustainability a high priority. At the same time, however, long-term financial stability must be guaranteed to achieve the planned corporate goals and ensure future viability.

RETHINK

RETHINK is a holistic sustainability concept for internal and external purposes.

The four R elements form the basis for defining global objectives at both corporate and portfolio (products and packaging) level across the entire value chain as well as for deriving a medium-term plan of action.

RETHINK – SOCIAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL RESPONSIBILITY

Elements

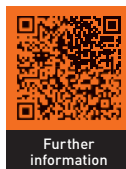

Products that meet these requirements are marked with the green RETHINK logo.

Labelling solutions for storage and operations

People are guided largely by what they see, and receive 80% of all information with their eyes. So accurate identification is the foundation for optimised production and storage processes. Optimal labelling of parking spaces, production or storage areas guarantees a quick overview. The micro-perforated insert labels make labelling child's play, thus making them the perfect companions for all industrial labels from DURABLE.

Marking solutions for storage and operations

People are guided largely by what they see. Good signage is essential to ensure necessary orientation and observance of statutory work-safety regulations, especially in dangerous areas as well as walkways and driveways.

Visual means of communication are increasingly used for efficient and flexible workplace organisation according to lean management methods, especially in production and operations. The DURABLE floor and safety markings comply with ASR A1.3 and ISO 7010. Both facilitate clear guidance as well as compliance with safety regulations in storage, production and operations.
